PARIS, July 1.—The French army will take to the field immediately if Danzig is "touched" by Nazi Germany, Premier Edouard Daladier told his council of ministers at an extraordinary session today.

Describing the situation as "most serious," Daladier outlined in detail new national defense measures taken within the last few days.

The premier outlined all steps designed to prepare this nation for war and dispelled all doubts con-

PA NEWC OBSERVES

After the pet parade Friday afternoon, a near sighted old gentleman, seeing a lady holding a pretty fluffy poodle in her arms, asked, "Is that a dog or a monkey?"

Today is New Year's day at the local post office. It is the beginning of their fiscal year.

Next Tuesday is the Fourth of July, and New Castle will have the first "quiet" Fourth, insofar as firecrackers are concerned. While New Castle council prohibited sale and use of firecrackers some years ago, it has always heretofore been possible to purchase any quantity at stands erected outside the city. This year, these stands are missing. The new state law, prohibits sale and use of firecrackers anywhere in the state, except in organized displays.

Beans have been picked for the last two weeks in the garden of Mrs. Julia Argilan, 10 Homestead Street, Pa Newc is informed, and this morning a bushel was gathered from the garden for canning purposes.

With the menace to individuals from firecrackers largely eliminated on the Fourth, it will be necessary for autoists to exercise extreme caution over the week end and Fourth to keep down casualties from traffic accidents. There will probably be a record amount of traffic through this city and district, and while the highways will be well patrolled by motor police, safe driving is the only thing that will entirely eliminate accidents. Drive safely.

Motorists who have driven down to the new plant of the Pennsylvania Power Company at West Pittsburg, have noticed that the new Castle Junction yards of the B. and O. and the shops seem to be quite busy at the present time.

Local residents are about ready for it to stop raining for a while, rain having fallen two out of every three days this month, for a total of 6.64 inches, which is quite a little above the average for June, generally a fairly dry month.

No new detours are noted in the local district for the period ending July 7, on the detour bulletin of the Pennsylvania Highway System. Oiling operations are scheduled on the road between Slippery Rock and Mercer during this period.

European Situation Developments Of Day

(International News Service)

London's anxiety remained keen today, but Germany scoffed at fears of a Nazi coup in Danzig as Poland stood by, alert and ready.

Developments in the European situation:

LONDON—A midnight conference for newspapermen called by Foreign Secretary Halifax gave substance to reports that Germany is planning a "final solution" of the Danzig question within the next few days. Instead of using military force, however, Hitler may make a trip to Danzig late this month, after which Danzig will declare a "spontaneous" desire to rejoin the Reich.

BERLIN—Peaceful developments will bring back Danzig—so why try a putsch there? This was Germany's answer to British qualms, but Berlin authorities warned Poland that any Polish coup in Danzig would fail because of immediate German military intervention.

WARSAW—Political circles discussed the possibility that Britain and France—Poland's allies—have warned Poland to refrain from any provocative acts against Germany.

PARIS—Measures to strengthen France's fighting power were discussed at a cabinet meeting.

House Retains Embargo On Shipment Of Arms; Passing Neutrality Bill

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The administration program for repeal of embargo provisions of the neutrality act, emasculated in a bitter bipartisan house revolt, today faced violent senate opposition which threatened to develop into an all-summer filibuster.

The house passed the administration-backed Bloom bill last midnight by a vote of 200 to 188—but only after it had voted to retain an absolute embargo on shipment of arms and ammunition to warring nations.

Retention of the embargo in a dramatic house session admittedly was a crushing administration defeat, so emphatic that some members of congress predicted that the entire neutrality act repeal battle would be dropped.

British Labor Asks Germans To Forsake War

(International News Service)

LONDON, July 1.—In a sensational move recalling President Wilson's war-time pleas for peace to the German people, a manifesto was issued today by the National Council of British Labor appealing to the men and women of the Reich to forsake war.

Entitled, "Why Kill Each Other?" the manifesto was broadcast by the British Broadcasting company in English and in German and rebroadcast over secret radios smuggled into the Reich by underground anti-Nazi organizations.

"The British people are your friends," the manifesto read.

"We must be determined to be the masters, not the slaves, of our fate.

"You must face the fact that if the Danzig situation persists the result will be war.

"The charges that you are being encircled by Britain is wicked propaganda. War threatens you not from the outside but from the inside, the responsibility for which belongs to Adolf Hitler, who is encircling himself and you."

Breach Widens For President And Congress

Controversy Over National Economy And Conduct Of Foreign Relations

RELIEF BILL IS PASSED BY CONGRESS

Filibuster By Senate Knocks Out Monetary Powers Of President

By ROBERT HUMPHREYS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 1.—President Roosevelt and congress began a new fiscal year today with the breach between them widening hourly.

A session which got under way with the executive and legislative branches in complete accord on rearmament appeared headed for an open break over policies affecting the national economy and the conduct of foreign relations.

Contributing no little to the growing separation was the use to which the foes of the new deal have put the legislative jam occasioned by the expiration of the fiscal year at midnight last night.

Weird Marathon

In one of the weirdest marathon sessions that congress has experienced in years, both houses labored far into the night—the senate devoting its time to a filibuster against extension of the president's extraordinary monetary powers; the house spending the waning hours virtually wrecking the executive's neutrality legislation.

Similarly, both branches approved and shot through at the last minute the most stringent relief bill enacted since the policy of federal succor to the unfortunate was adopted in the early days of the new deal. Its sponsors called it a bill carrying orders from congress for "WPA to clean its own house," but it drew severe criticism from President Roosevelt.

Filibuster Hits Monetary Plan

Powers Of President Lost; But Democrats See Chance Of Reviving Them

VOTE IS SET FOR NEXT WEDNESDAY

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 1.—A new fiscal year dawned for Uncle Sam today, with President Roosevelt's six-year-old powers to devalue the dollar dead, but apparently not beyond recall.

A 14-hour senate filibuster blocked adoption before last midnight of a conference report continuing the executive's powers to devalue the dollar, the treasury $2,000,000,000 currency stabilization fund, and the government foreign silver purchase program. Democrats insisted enactment of this report at a later date would revive these powers.

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky finally secured an agreement to vote on Wednesday at 5 p. m., upon the conference report, after Republican objectors to the administration program were talked out. If, on this vote, the conference report continuing the president's monetary powers is adopted, Democratic leaders insist that the powers of the president will be continued in effect.

Backing up this contention was an opinion from Attorney General Frank Murphy, stating that the

Troop K Wins Most Of Honors At Encampment

Local National Guard Unit Returns Home This Morning After Successful Camp

IS OUTSTANDING UNIT IN BRIGADE

Tired but happy, members of Troop K., 103rd Cavalry arrived home at 7 o'clock this morning from Camp Wood, Annville, Pa., after the most successful encampment in the history of the troop.

The troop not only carried off most of the athletic honors, but in the maneuvers and reviews stood at the top of the list at all times, and were beyond all question of doubt, the outstanding cavalry unit of the entire brigade and the troop officers received many fine words of praise from the commanding officers of the brigade.

The last event of importance, outside that of boarding the train for home, was the final "retreat parade" on Thursday evening, which was entirely in the hands of the non-commissioned officers of the regiment, with the men passing in review before the officers of the camp. During this ceremony, the trophies for the various athletic events were awarded.

Win Three Trophies

Of the seven men who answered the call of "front and center" four were Troop K. men and it gave the boys quite a thrill to see the local unit out in front, particularly so because no other unit received more than one trophy, making the achievement of the local boys all the more noticeable.

The trophies received by Troop K. went to Corporal Chester Walzer, welterweight; and Joe Perrotta, troop bugler, light heavyweight; while Mac Pollock and Ben Nessle divided the heavyweight trophy between them. This latter was due to the fact that both Pollock and Nessle defeated all their opponents in the heavyweight division and since Troop K. has a reputation of fighting for its men, rather than among themselves, and since the trophy had been won by the troop, the two boys agreed to share the honors. The troopers are now inviting their friends to come out to the new armory and take a look at

Franco-British Squadron May Be Sent To Danzig

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, July 1.—Pressed by fresh alarms of a possible Hitler coup in Danzig this week-end, allied authorities today weighed every conceivable means of convincing the Fuehrer that they mean this time to fight.

Among the radical measures taken into serious consideration was the dispatch of a squadron of the Franco-British fleet to Danzig.

Naval experts point out that this demonstration could only take place in the Baltic if Anglo-French-Russion cooperation had reached such a point that the Soviets would allow the British to use their Kronstadt base.

Could Be Bottled Up

Otherwise, the allied squadron in Baltic could be bottled up by German minefields and submarines in the Skaggerak and Kattegat and then destroyed by a superior German fleet.

It is held that the French and British could not afford to send a Baltic fleet large enough to contend

Showers Fail To Halt Pet Parade On Friday

With storm clouds hovering over them, New Castle's youngsters marched through the downtown on Friday afternoon in the city's second annual pet parade. A large crowd lined the streets.

Sponsored jointly by the New Castle Educational Recreation council and The Townsmen, young men's civic organization, the march of yesterday eclipsed in every way the parade of a year ago.

The downtown paused as the happy army of juveniles, escorting pets they cherish more than gold, trooped up South Jefferson street from the Rosena grounds, up East Washington to Croton avenue, down South Croton and back into the Rotary playground on the western edge of the Rosena property.

Band Leads March

Martial music was provided by the trim American Legion Junior band, which led the marchers. At the end there was a smaller band, one from the city's Booker T. Washington playground.

Secretary Hull Scores Action

Calls On Congress To Reconsider Action On Neutrality Measure

HOUSE ACTION IS MATTER OF REGRET

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 1—With the full approval of President Roosevelt Secretary of State Cordell Hull directed sharp criticism at the house today for failure to pass administration-sponsored neutrality legislation and called upon congress to reconsider its action to "keep this country out of war."

Secretary Hull, in a formal statement, on the New Deal's position, emphatically declared that the substitute neutrality measure passed by the House last night fails to guarantee "the best interests of this country in its international relations."

The house action, Secretary Hull said, is regarded by the administration as a matter of regret and disappointment from the standpoint of peace."

The No. 1 officers of the Roosevelt cabinet then revealed that the administration would not retreat in its fight for its neutrality program which underwent drastic revision at the hands of a rebellious congress.

The administration, the secretary said, "must continue to urge the adoption of its six-point neutrality program, first proposed by Hull, which includes abandonment of compulsory arms embargo provisions carried in the present neutrality act.

Four Drowned As Result Of Storm

The current was more than they could withstand and both were swept off their feet and drawn into the sewer,

Britain Uses Strong Terms In Warning Reich

Says War Will Result If Poland Forcibly Resists Danzig's Return To Reich

BRITAIN-FRANCE TO SUPPORT POLAND

Hitler Apparently Expects To Gain Danzig By Peaceful Action Is Report

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, July 1.—In the strongest possible terms, Great Britain today again warned Germany that war will result if Poland forcibly resists Danzig's return to the Reich.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and a government spokesman issued the clear cut admonition to the Reich that force will be met by armed resistance and indicated that further "bloodless victories" by the Nazi-Fascist group will be difficult to achieve.

Chamberlain, in a letter to a conservative candidate in the north Cornwall by-election, said:

Will Meet Force

"His majesty's government has always expressed a desire that differences between nations should be settled by discussion and cooperation.

"On the other hand it has made it no less clear that the government is resolutely opposed to attempts to impose settlements by force and if need be we will meet such attempts by force."

Following up the aggressive new foreign policy voiced by Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, a government spokesman summoned the press and in these words served notice on Reichfuehrer Adolf Hitler what may be expected if plans for a peaceful "internal" solution of the Danzig crisis materializes:

Will Support Poland

"Should the Danzig senate vote to include the free city within the Reich, and should Poland march into Danzig as a result, Poland will be supported to the hilt by France and England.

"His majesty's government wants there to be not the slightest doubt about this."

Referring to "a great many rumors, some exaggerated and some

France To Increase Armed Power

Daladier Calls His Ministers

Steps Needed To Increase France's Defense Are To Be Discussed

STUDY REPORT OF AMBASSADOR

(International News Service)

PARIS, July 1—Premier Edouard Daladier today called together his ministers to discuss measures to strengthen France's armed power in the light of developments in the Danzig crisis.

Daladier, ruling again with semi-dictatorial powers since he sent Parliament home with the warning that the summer months would be the most difficult for Europe since the World War, had before him the report of France's ambassador to Poland, Leon Noel.

Noel rushed back from Warsaw yesterday to give his personal story of the German-Polish situation. Sir Eric Phipps the British Ambassador also talked with Daladier.

The cabinet, it was understood, is discussing such precautionary measures as financing increased armament, developing industry in general, and speeding up production in airplane factories.

precipitated by the jam over neutrality, relief and monetary powers, a group of conservative Democrats and Republicans seized the opportunity to convene the house rules committee for a favorable vote on a resolution calling for a special house investigation of the national labor relations board.

Special Investigation

Twenty-four hours earlier the house had voted the special WPA investigating committee another $75,000 to continue its inquiry, and the Dies committee investigating un-American activities is slated to seek additional funds before adjournment of congress.

The Dies committee has already proven a thorn in the side of the administration, the WPA inquiry has been received with much discomfort, the prospective probe of the NLRB is not slated to be accepted with relish.

Less in the headline stage at the moment, but equally controversial, lurks a certain battle over Mr. Roosevelt's $3,800,000,000 lending program. Legislation for it has not even been introduced, but the grumbling in both the senate and house has grown daily since the plan was first announced by the chief executive last week.

Congressional leaders have virtually abandoned hope for a mid-summer adjournment. Twenty-one senators have been pledged to filibuster the neutrality bill, although the damage wrought by the house may shift the burden of the battle from their shoulders to those of the administration forces.

with the whole German fleet. But Anglo-French superiority over the German and Italian navies is such that experts say it would be feasible to detach a considerable squadron to the Baltic first and to demonstrate and then, if the demonstration failed to check Hitler, to join with the Russian fleet which is now strong in submarines.

They could base at Kronstadt, dominate the Northern Baltic and cut off Germany's vital communications with Swedish ore.

Russia's Signature Urgent

Thus the urgency of obtaining Russia's signature to a triple alliance against aggression has become paramount.

The reason why the French and British governments yesterday predicted that the pact would be signed today or Monday was because they had instructed their emissaries in Moscow to sign absolutely anything, to accept any Russian demand, but to sign at all costs immediately.

Additional menace was lent the situation by things told to French officials by Herr Abetz, who is German foreign minister Joachin Von Ribbentrop's chief of staff in the Nazi party "foreign office."

Abetz spent a week here before being expelled from France yesterday. He told French officials that Ribbentrop is certain that Polish foreign minister Josef Beck will compromise, that Britain will not fight but will encourage the Poles to surrender. He added that Germany believed Britain would not be ready to fight for two years.

Abetz also spread the story that Hitler may strike this or next week end, which rumors was regarded as a possible weapon in the war of nerves. The error of believing that the British and French will not fight was clearly revealed by the fact that the British and French ambassadors yesterday urged Beck to make every effort to convince Hitler that Poland herself intends to resist.

TROOP K WINS MOST OF HONORS AT ENCAMPMENT

the fine start which has been made toward filling up the nice new trophy case.

In the review which was staged in honor of General Edward C. Shannon, last Saturday, Troop K. stood second only to the First City Troop of Philadelphia, known as the show troop of the regiment, and in the "pass by review" each evening Troop K. shared first honors with Machine Gun Troop.

At the annual bivouac and miniature war, Troop K. covered itself with glory. Col. Benjamin J. Jones, regimental commander was with Troop K. during the three-day miniature war, and complimentel the officers and men on their efficiency and general knowledge, and their ability to carry out every order given them with alacrity and dispatch. It demonstrated the splendid training the men have received under a capable corps of officers and the pride which the members of the troop have in such matters.

There were no casualties of any consequence, some of the boys having received a few kicks from their mounts, the most serious of which happened to Ben Nessle, who was kicked in the chest, but was able to return to duty after a day's rest, a few severe cases of sunburn, and a few colds, due to the dampness of the weather and a continuous groundwind.

Capt. George F. Seyffert, troop Commander, expressed himself as most pleased with the conduct of his command, and was loud in his praise of the splendid way in which they conducted themselves at camp.

The horses arrived several hours after the men, this morning, and by noon were comfortbaly stabled in their old stalls at the armory, having been on duty at the camp for an entire month.

The most pleasant duty of all came after the work had been cleaned up and completed this morning, when the roll was called and the men received their checks for their tour of duty at camp, bringing the encampment to an official close.

Opposing this position Republicans announced that they considered the president's powers to devalue the dollar, the treasury stabilization fund and the foreign silver purchase program a thing of the past. They asserted that their filibuster, carrying a conference report on these powers past a midnight deadline, was directed toward, and achieved, one goal—a nullification of presidential monetary powers to the point where new legislation must be started through congress.

The congressional impasse, leaders said, was calculated to produce more fighting next week.

mors that Nazi or Polish hot-heads were planning to create a fait accompli in the Baltic seaport.

On the German side, it was explained authoritatively, a Nazi stroke is out of the question, since it would have an unfavorable influence on developments now working towards actual reunion of Danzig with the Reich.

(London heard that these "developments" included (1) German infiltration of Danzig to form an armed "home guard"; (2) plans for pro-German demonstrations to accompany a late July visit to Danzig by Chancellor Hitler, and (3) the prospect that the Danzig senate then would express the city's desire to join the Reich.)

true," the government spokesman made clear Britain's keen anxiety over the Danzig outlook.

"It would be very dangerous," he said, "if any steps were taken in this connection owing to any misapprehension concerning the attitude of his majesty's government."

Hitler's Plans

(Editor's Note: Seemingly reliable reports indicate that Hitler's plans regarding Danzig embrace: (1) A personal visit to the free city, (2) a proclamation by the Danzig senate for reunion with the Reich, (3) "peaceful" amalgamation of Danzig with greater Germany.)

The new British thesis as outlined today ruled out the possibility, frequently alluded to by the German press, that Poland would be termed the aggressor if she marched into Danzig after an "anschluss" proclamation by the free city's senate.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain left to spend the week-end in the country prior to a brief address he is to make tomorrow night. Viscount Halifax, however, remained in London with other key ministers, all of whom remained in closest touch with the situation.

It was formally denied that any new official assurances had been sent to Poland by Great Britain and France. The government apparently felt that the stand voiced by a spokesman today would be sufficient to make clear their attitude.

Herschel Johnson of the United States embassy called at the foreign office at noon for a first-hand report on the outlook.

HOUSE RETAINS EMBARGO ON ARMS SHIPMENT

into factions over the issues of neutrality and war, considers the Bloom bill next week.

House passage of the Bloom bill climaxed a four-day house battle, during which opposing charges were made that the bill put the nation "on the road to war" and was praised as an aid to peace.

As passed, the measure forbids sale of munitions to belligerent nations, but strikes out of the present neutrality act a ban on sale of "implements of war." It prohibits foreign loans, except for usual commercial puprposes, and requires American shippers to divest themselves of title when goods leave this country.

The amendment which crippled the administration drive for complete repeal of the arms embargo was proposed by Rep. John M. Vorys (R) Ohio, serving his first term in the house. The amendment bans sale of arms and munitions, though permitting sale of implements of war.

The house voted on the Vorys amendment three times. The final roll call vote was 214 to 173 for it, even though Speaker Bankhead and Democratic leader Rayburn took the floor in opposition.

cerning France's decision to go to Poland's aid if help is called for. The council of ministers unanimously approved the measures he had taken.

New Moves Planned

During the three-hour session, Daladier submitted for consideration the following laws to be enacted by decree under the dictatorial powers granted him by parliament. They included:

1—Authorization of new national defense expenditures, including the immediate outlay of 4,000,000 francs out of the 15,000,000,000 franc credit granted on April 21.

2—Extension to the prefects of all departments throughout France full power to prosecute and prevent all crimes and misdemeanors arising out of the law for organization of the nation in time of war. These powers are usually given only in actual war-time.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnett, who followed Daladier before the council, described the progress of negotiations with Soviet Russia regarding an anti-aggression agreement.

In the course of his statement, Daladier emphasized France's unequivocal determination to prevent no further violations of the European status quo. He assured his ministers that all necessary measures had already been taken.

STATISTICAL FICTION

THE futility of hoping for approximation of the truth, let alone accuracy, from reports inspired by hostile governments is illustrated in the conflicting claims of Japan and Russia regarding plane losses in raids along the Manchukuoan border.

Tokyo started the fictionizing by reporting that its fliers had shot down more than 120 Soviet or Mongol planes since May 28 and that 62 were accounted for in the fighting in two days. Entire responsibility for starting trouble is laid at the door of Russia by the Japanese.

Tass, the official news agency of Moscow, turns in an entirely different set of figures. Since May 28 it admits to the loss of 23 planes, while its air fighters were bringing down 59 Japanese craft. Moreover in the last few days of fighting in which Tokyo claimed such a tremendous advantage, Tass says that the Soviet-Mongol force lost only two planes to 25 for the Jap-Manchukuoans.

There is no use trying to reconcile these figures. They are too far apart even to hit a plausible average. Russia is emphatic in declaring that hostilities were begun by the Japanese, whom they term "invaders."

Only one thing is reasonably clear: the military operations on the Manchukuoan border are of a magnitude not hitherto suspected. In both reports it is admitted that the number of planes involved in the attacks was large—120 on the Japanese side in one instance.

If it is true, as Moscow asserts, that Russian planes have never violated the frontier except to pursue across the line some enemy flier who had engaged in a raid on Soviet territory, then it is probable that Japan is pursuing one of her favorite policies—testing out the strength of a potential adversary. She has done that before at the Amur River; she is doing practically the same thing at Tientsin and Amoy with regard to the British.

The danger is that one of these "tests" may be carried so far that the patience of the victim will become exhausted and that there will be a war in real earnest.

QUINT PENOLOGY

Dr. Dafoe, it appears, doesn't spank his little girls, and doesn't let anybody else do so. Nurses and teachers are required to use reason rather than force.

And what is "reason" in this model kindergarten? "When the girls are naughty," the doctor explains, "we just make them sit alone for a while. That works well."

Ostracism or isolation is a natural and severe punishment for social-minded people—and nearly all of us, good or bad, have social instincts. We try it often in our prisons. Solitary confinement is usually the last resort in the case of a rebellious and troublesome prisoner.

But often it doesn't work with grownups. Maybe that is because the procedure started too late in life. A little "sitting alone" in childhood, imposed not in anger but as a natural result of unsociable conduct, might accomplish more than a great deal of it later on.

VACATIONS ARE IMPORTANT

It isn't so much where you go . . . what you do . . . how you go . . . or how much you spend that is important.

The important thing is to TAKE A VACATION.

Times are hard . . . competition is keener than it has ever been before. And now you need your wits, steady nerves and good health.

After 50 weeks of hard work and routine . . . anyone and everyone needs a vacation . . . needs to get away from it all and see new people, new sights, do new things.

Where you go for your vacation depends considerably upon what you want to do, what you can afford to do and what your duty is. But so far as you can, try to select a place for YOUR vacation that will give you a change . . . somewhere that you can use another set of muscles and another part of your thinking apparatus.

Don't go to the same old place year in and year out . . . that makes the little circle of your life just as narrow as ever . . . go some place new . . . even if you don't like it so well, if it refreshes you, gives you something to remember and think upon, it gives you a new lease on life for the rest of the year.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

The growth of administrative law has been the subject of concern to bar associations and other students of government. It is not a new thing in American life. With the great expansion of federal functions in new and important fields it has reached full flower under the present administration. It is, therefore, useful to be reminded now and then of its extravagances.

In a recent case in Manhattan, not a federal case, the Commissioner of Public Markets denied a peddler's license to an employee of a New York concern which has hundreds of small vehicles selling ice cream on the streets. The license was denied on the ground that the applicant did not own the vehicle, that a corporation owned it. Supreme Court Justice Hammer, ordering the license to issue, said this:

"Laws are made by the law-making power and not by administrative officers acting solely on their own ideas of sound public policy, however excellent such ideas might be. The applicant here has shown that he is a fit and proper person to engage in a license business under the provisions of the licensing law and the respondent licensing officers have shown nothing to the contrary. No limitations upon the authorized right to do business not contained in the law may be imposed by the administrative official."

A reminder now and then, such as Justice Hammer's that there's a limit to administrative discretion, won't do a bit of harm.

A family had a guest for dinner and all were talking about how they loved good coffee. Father was especially enthusiastic, and said:

"I make it fresh every morning I get up early and build a fire in my pajamas."

"They must be warm for summer," said the guest without a smile. "What are they made of—asbestos?"

A bit of Chinese laundry philosophy:

"You want credit; me no give, you get sore. You want credit, me give you no pay, me get sore. Better you get sore."

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

SOLVING LONELY YOUTH'S WOES

"DEAR DR. MYERS: I have two boys, 20 and 17. The oldest is at college, the younger in junior high school, and it is the younger one I worry about. ...

"For the last few years he has grown quite rapidly and is so self-conscious. He holds his hands awkwardly in front of him, which draws his chest in, and also holds his head to one side. When he gets new clothes he does not want to wear them, fearing that some one will look at him. I cannot get him to make any good friends, although I would be glad to have him ask them to our home. Since his brother is in college, he is very lonely as we live about two miles from town. We have no boy his age near us. There is just one boy, 12, who plays basketball and ping-pong with him. ...

"He is a good student and is one of the leaders of his class. The only interest he shows in outside things is his Sunday school class, of which he is secretary and treasurer.

"He seems as if he were in a shell and will not respond to kindness; never says anything about how he feels, but I do not think he is happy. If you could give me any suggestions I certainly would be grateful. It distresses me so to see him missing so much during his early youth.' '

Answering her personally, I suggested that she go on trying to attract other boys of this lad's age to his home; that some boys might be induced to come to spend the week-end, and that the older brother might find ways to help in the problem. I suggested that he be attracted to a club such as in the Y, and have several weeks at a summer camp.

Since this boy is faithful in attendance at Sunday school, the teacher might be able to help him find more social satisfaction. So might his teacher at school, by working through some other boys who are unselfish, to induce him to participate in more group fun, and feel more worthwhile among his fellows. Often we can get the best results at helping the timid, lonely youth through the efforts of other youths.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

AN UNUSUAL EVENT

An historical event occurred in these United States on Sunday, the eleventh day of June, 1939.

He who is the Prince and head of the English Catholic Church attended at Hyde Park, New York, the St. James Episcopal Church and sat in a pew,—George VI, King of Great Britain, Ireland and the Dominions Overseas, Emperor of India, Defender of the Faith and titular head of the English Catholic Church,—what we call in America, the Episcopal Church.

Every English King, from Henry VIII to George VI, has been head of the English Catholic Church. The Archbishop of Canterbury, if the King so wills, must yield to the King. He who would have been Edward VIII, who was in fact Edward VIII although not crowned, might have resisted the Archbishop of Canterbury had he so desired and insisted upon his birthright,—so great is the royal prerogative of the English King.

Now, while the other Protestant Churches of the world repeat the Apostles' Creed and as a part of their Credo, say, "I believe in the Holy Catholic Church" yet that Creed, the English Catholic Church, as well as the Roman Catholic Church, insist was the birthright of the Church.

And while in our mind's eye, we view George and Elizabeth sitting in that pew on a beautiful June day, dressed not in the panolpy of royalty, but simply, as were many English men and English women on that same day, all over the world, we feel convinced that Englishmen will "carry on", as have their forebears for a thousand years.

And now in the words of Kipling: "The tumult and shouting dies
The Captains and the Kings depart.
Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice.
An humble and a contrite heart."

GROWING

The little fellow's growing strong
And wise for one so small
I'll bet it won't be very long
Before he starts to crawl.

Those little legs of his appear
Already growing stout.
I'll bet the day is drawing near
He'll want to move about.

Those eyes of his are looking round
In such a knowing way
I'll bet the rascal will be found
In mischief any day.

Just four months old and growing strong
And wise for one so small!
I'll bet it won't be very long
Before he spoils us all.

Good Taste

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Francine Markel

Nothing dates a pedestrian more exactly than the angle of his toes. In the heyday of our grandfathers, soldiers were taught to turn their toes out at an angle of 45 degrees from each other. It became the military style of walking and standing. Children were taught to cultivate it by walking the bricks in the pavements of those days, that were set diagonally in a sort of herring-bone pattern. Then at about the beginning of the present century, feet were taught to turn straight ahead in "Indian style." Those who do not keep their feet parallel while walking, now look awkward.

Dear Miss Markel—I am going to a house-party over the weekend. As I am usually in the habit of sleeping late, I am in doubt as to what I should do about breakfast; that is, must I get up early or may I sleep late and be given my breakfast at any time? LAURA.

Answer—It is the duty of the hostess to enlighten her guests on this point. In some houses, breakfast is at a set hour while in others it may be continuous. Should your hostess neglect to tell you what time this meal is to be served, you should ask either her or the maid.

HEREDITY

My friend, the barber, had a little son, just a little shaver. He also had a lovely daughter, but he couldn't razor. He gave her a good trimming and sent her to school to be finished. But at school she became a nuisance, getting in everybody's hair. The boy learned to trim the lawn and later became famous as an expert in massaging and manicuring pots and pans in a hotel. The daughter finished school and married a chiropodist, which was a fine economic move because as a beauty parlor expert she could work on the customer's head while her husband worked on the feet and thus they made both ends meet.

The man who says "there is only one thing to do about it" has at least been giving it some thought.

Some members of congress want to adjourn so they can go home and talk to their constituents. That may be far better than listening to some people in Washington.

A Pittsburgh couple saved up 250 pennies with which to get a marriage license. They might not be penny wise at that.

TOUCH OF SHOWMANSHIP

Successful publicity must contain two basic elements. One must do something a trifle out of the ordinary, and then he must let the world know that he is doing it. It is folly to advertise the fact that one is doing a self-evident thing. People take that for granted, and such advertising fails to register.

The public pays no attention when a store announces that it is selling the usual goods at the customary prices. We pay no heed to the butcher who merely sells ordinary meat, or the clergyman who preaches every Sunday at 10:30, or to the dog that bites the man. We expect them to do that. To advertise the fact is stupid publicity.

When something a trifle unusual is done, and duly advertised, the world takes notice. There must be a touch of showmanship of the right sort. Barnum was not the only man who understood that fact. Diogenes was a great philosopher, but few people in Athens paid any attention to him until he curled up in a tub and went to sleep. They did not expect a philosopher to sleep in a tub. Like the man who bit the dog, the matter became news. Boniface had showmanship when he cut down the sacred oak of Thor. Bryan had it when he donned his ten-gallon hat and let his hair straggle over his collar. Champ Clark understood it, with his wide hat and his huge plug of chewing tobacco. Theodore Roosevelt Roosevelt's picturesque adjectives helped make him famous.

In each case it is a touch of the unusual. A clever rabbi in Cleveland packed his church merely by celebrating Luther's 450th birthday. People resent unexpected things, and yet they flock to see what it is all about. Showmanship and vulgarity are closely related, and it is the real artist who knows how to use the one and yet avoid the other.

An English scientist says smoking makes you tired because it hurts your conscience. Still, scientists sometimes make us tired, and they don't hurt our conscience.

The auto accident situation has reached the point that it is high time the public puts it's foot down—on the brake.

Brazilian General Handicapped Is Unable To Understand Language Compared With British Royalty

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Due to his 100 per cent unfamiliarity with the North American language, Gen. Pedro Aurelio de Monteiro, the Brazilian army's chief of staff, now touring the United States, as a distinguished guest of Uncle Sam, must be missing much of the pungency of the remarks he overhears, if he could understand them, in the course of his travels.

King George and Queen Elizabeth naturally were not thoroughly acquainted with American, but English and American are enough alike that so, presumably, their majesties got the general purport of the chat that thy listened to while in this country.

Illustratively:

The royal couple visited Arlington. News photographers were on hand in swarms to take their pictures. Secret servicers and other guardians bothered these cameramen considerably. President Roosevelt's son "Jimmie" is a candid camera fiend himself. The secret servicers, knowing him, didn't handicap him seriously. He crowded in front of the professionals, annoying them greatly.

"Hey, Jimmie," yelled one of their number, "get to hell out of the way. Ya think we can shoot through ya?"

"Jimmie" promptly complied, apologizing, "I'm so sorry".

England and America

If this had happened in England I surmise that it would have attracted attention.

Here nobody paid any heer to it. The king and queen undoubtedly heard it, but they were too diplomatic to say so.

British royalty can "take it".

A few years ago, when the then Prince of Wales, later king and now Duke of Windsor, was at Niagara Falls, he likewise fretted the American photographers, and Hyman Greenberg, one of their number, screeched, "Hi ya, Prince; move over". And the prince did it in short order. Greenie didn't say anything about hell, though.

But the point is that General Monteiro can have American expressions hurled around him without knowing it.

Hard-boiled militarist that he is, I've no notion that they'd shock him, but I do think that they'd entertain him—only that they're meaningless in his language. They are unlikely to be translated to him by any well-bred interpreter, either.

What he misses is our vernacular.

International Vulgarity

Spanish and Portuguese have some good profanity and obscenity each of its own. General Monteiro ought to be able to speak both fluently. It's too bad that he isn't equipped to add our collection to his vocabulary.

It's a funny thing—I'm good at Iberian cuss words. I tried it while the general was in Washington. I could out-cuss that guy in a minute.

The trouble with the Spaniards is that they consider Portuguese a mere Spanish dialect—and the Portuguese consider Spanish a mere Portuguese dialect.

But they can understand one another (or anybody else) if there's any financial consideration at stake—no matter how picayune it may be.

Crux is:

General Monteiro was sent here from Brazil on business. All O. K. But it's a mistake to assume that there was much altruism about it. They owe us money. The general's game is to show us that really we owe it to THEM.

But Cuss Words?

But cuss words?

I'll guarantee to tie any Latin along that line, or any German or any Japanese—translated, word for word.

Of course we're stung. That doesn't mean so much as to war debts. But commercial indebtedness, like South America's?

They do make ya sore.

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

Not Too High A Price

WASHINGTON, July 1.

THE report of Mr. Roosevelt's Hyde Park press conference at which he denounced the Senate action in refusing to continue his power to devalue the dollar reveals him in one of his least admirable lights. However, to those who have observed the President over a long period of years his reaction was not surprising.

THESE recognize that there is a strong congenital disposition in him to believe in his own wisdom and virtue and to consider those who dissent as either wicked or ignorant or both. This not altogether endearing trait is likewise characteristic of the more radical of his New Deal advisers, is evidenced in the speeches of the more conspicuous New Deal spokesman and in the output of the New Deal press agents. It was, therefore, entirely in character that when the Senate restricted his autocratic control over the currency, he should attribute to those who so voted wholly unworthy motives and a complete stupidity. As has been the custom, the note thus sounded by Mr. Roosevelt is reechoed by his journalistic supporters and there is today an excited chorus from the New Deal choir to the general effect that currency control has been turned back to Wall Street and the "international bankers."

IT SOUNDS like Father Coughlin—and it is very old, trite stuff, which has been used for years by every cheap demagogue in the country. It is essentially a soap-box argument and in this case particularly nonsensical, because there is in the two-billion stabilization fund, the powers inherent in the Treasury and the ability of Congress to act in an emergency, adequate protection to American interests. The peevish assertion that control has been regained by Wall Street and the "International Bankers" is just as absurd as the allegation that a blow has been struck at the national defense and that behind it are the great newspapers and their publishers.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S ruffled temper was demonstrated in the curt order to the reporter of the New York Times, who had stopped for a moment taking notes to ask a clarifying question, to "take this down even if your paper won't print it." Actually, he was in a state of extreme resentment because the Senate had curtailed his authority. He did not hesitate to assail the motives of those responsible and to make accusations for which he has not a particle of support. The only thing he did not bring into his harangue was the almost defunct Liberty League, which is surprising, as the third-term publicists recently resurrected that worn-out whipping post.

ALTOGETHER, it was a typical Roosevelt performance. While it is deplorable the victory had to be won through a coalition with the self-centered and unscrupulous silver Senators and at the price of an indefensible increase in the Treasury rate for silver, nevertheless the fact remains that the first step toward a return to orthodox Federal finance was taken. Even if the House or the Conference Committee modifies the action or effects a compromise, the significance of what the Senate did on Monday is not lessened by violent denunciation of the Republicans for having made what is termed a "shameful deal" with the silverites. The answer, of course, is that the stake was vital enough to justify the deal. It is interesting that so many of our most pontifical journalists, who swallow without a gulp the inconsistency, mendacity and utter disregard of promises upon the part of the New Dealers, practically foam at the mouth when the opposition fails to measure one hundred per cent, up to the highest ethical standards.

THE Senate showed a determination to turn away from one-man government and rescind the dictatorial power conferred upon Mr. Roosevelt in the name of emergency and at his insistence—a determination which did not exist at all in the last session. It was made possible by conservative Democrats and Republicans who believe the power Mr. Roosevelt now possesses to devalue is a dangerous power, justifiable only in time of great crisis, that to extend it for two years would be to risk its disastrous use under advice of the jitterbug economists of the White House circle; that fear of its unwise exercise by an impulsive President hangs over business like a pall.

THE power to change the value of the dollar is properly a Congressional power and not a Presidential prerogative. To restore it to Congress is a constructive step toward the return to a sound fiscal policy.

To intimate that the men who voted to do this acted in the interests of "Wall Street and the international bankers" is malevolent and unfounded. It comes with particularly poor taste from the man responsible for the lapse in national morality represented in the repudiation of our gold pledges. It is a pity coalition with the silver crowd was involved, but the cost of the rise in the price of silver to the taxpayer (estimated at $10,000,000) is trivial compared to present-day New Deal expenditures. Certainly, it is not too high a price to pay. There are competent observers who feel that in time this particular Senate action will be looked upon as the first step back along the road toward national financial stability.

Mr. Robert Boyd came to New Castle in 1805, but prior to his coming he had visited in New Castle and written his mother of his visit to a new town that had been laid out, which he thought might some day come to something.

On April 10th, 1806, Mr. Boyd opened a store in a log building on the northwest corner of the "Diamond," which Jesse Du Shane had built and in which Du Shane was keeping a "tavern," called "New Tavern," which bore the first tavern sign ever seen in New Castle. By 1812, the town had grown to such importance that the government established a post office, and Mr. Boyd was appointed post master, which office he held until some time during the administration of President Van Buren, or about 28 years. He was known as Colonel Boyd.

The town grew slowly, and in 1806, eight years after the place was laid out, it is said the best lot in New Castle could be bought for ten dollars. Alexander Boyles, a blacksmith by trade, did actually purchase the whole square, bounded on the west by Beaver street, and on the north by North street, for ten dollars. He built a dwelling near the west side of his land, and a blacksmith shop near the northeast corner. As late as 1825, John Reed sold a lot on North Mercer street to Thomas Rigby for $30.

In 1806 New Castle contained but twenty homes.

Pennsylvania Has Indian Reservation

Cornplanter Indians Reside On Reservation In Warren County

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 1.—Secretary of Commerce Richard P. Brown today called attention to a little known scenic and historic center in Pennsylvania which "if properly developed and advertised will draw increased tourist trade to our state."

"Few people realize," Brown said, "that right here in Pennsylvania we have an Indian reservation where full-blooded Indians, of the Seneca tribe, still live. The cornplanter Indian reservations lies along the Allegheny river near the northern boundary of Pennsylvania in eastern Warren county, just outside the Allegheny national forest."

Brown said that many of the Indians, members of the tribe, do not reside permanently on the reservation. The total number approximates 250, it was said.

"Many of them," Brown declared, "earn their living by traveling with Wild West shows, working in moving pictures, and in professional athletics. They return to the reservation to visit their families and to attend tribal ceremonies. They would probably be glad to live there permanently if they could find a means of earning a living.

"One of the outstanding land marks of the reservation is the cemetery where is located a monument to Chief Cornplanter, erected by the legislature in 1866. Here are buried braves of the tribe who were veterans of the Civil War, Spanish-American War and World War.

Naval Parity With Britain Seen Unlikely

Shortage Of Vital Materials Will Prevent Germany From Making Gains

WIDE MARGIN EXISTING NOW

By FREDERICK SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON.—The question whether or not the German Reich will attempt to build a battle fleet equal to Britain's is today uppermost in the minds of European naval circles.

Now that Germany has ended the Anglo-German naval accord, many people are presuming that she will make an effort to catch up with British naval superiority.

But this is regarded by highly-placed British naval sources as impossible. For not only does Germany suffer from a shortage of vital materials, but the cost of tripling her fleet would be terrific.

Even if these factors were set aside it would take at least eight years under favorable conditions.

Existing Wide Margin

Allowing that the British Government did not produce another navel program until 1947, Germany, to seek parity would have to build: 16 battleships, 10 aircraft carriers, 10 heavy cruisers, 56 light cruisers, and 114 torpedo boats.

At the present moment, the relative figures of the two fleets are stated to be:

	Britain	Germany
Battleships	24	8
Aircraft carriers ..	12	2
Heavy cruisers	15	5
Light cruisers	70	14
Torpedo boats ...	180	66

A construction program of sixteen battleships, ten aircraft carriers, ten heavy cruisers, fifty-six light cruisers, and 114 torpedo boats would cost the German government at least $1,820,000,000.

While this program was under construction there would still be the added cost of running the warcraft that are all ready in commission, and the annual upkeep of a large war vessel is estimated at $2,500,0000.

Hint Tax Limit

By increased taxes it might be possible for the German government to add another $227,500,000 yearly for eight years to her already gigantic armaments expenditure, but financial experts here consider that the taxable limit of the German people has already been passed.

Another factor weighing heavily against a German effort to gain parity with Britain is that the German shipyards are not equipped to cope with such a rush.

Britain's own shipyards have had a hard time to meet the demands made on them since the great rearmament drive started, and it will be 1943—eight years from the date of the first naval rearmament program—before the last of her new ships is completed.

Battleship Limit

Germany might be able to lay down three battleships a year, but not more.

She has not the building slips available to make nine small cruisers every year as well as twenty destroyers.

Room would also have to be found for two aircraft carriers and two heavy cruisers.

As the number of German submarines is unknown it is estimated that Germany has a greater number of these underwater craft than Britain, whose figure is given at 73. But so great is the British output of destroyers, torpedo boats and other sub-chasers that the German advantage is considered negligable.

German Advantage

The only real threat felt by England to her seaborne trade is the much publicized German "pocket-battleships."

Their eleven inch guns make them too strong for any of England's 8-inch gun cruisers to tackle without the fear of being sunk.

But the British navy has as counterparts to the Deutschland, Graf Spee and Konigsberg three ships with a much greater tonnage, heavily armored, a larger gun calibre, and the same speed.

These are the Hood, Renown, and Repulse, which go under the name of battle-cruisers but are considered to be in the same class as the heavier battleships.

The broadside fire of a pocket-battleship amount to 4,020 pounds of shell whereas that of the battle-cruisers is: Repulse, 11,700 pounds; Renown, 11,700 pounds; Hood, 15,600 pounds.

Pola Negri Wants $26,500 Damages

(International News Service)

PARIS, July 1—A French court went to work today on this problem: Whether Pola Negri (remember?) is a friend of Adolf Hitler, and if that is true, does saying so constitute libel.

Witnesses in court, as Miss Negri sat in silence, testified that she suffered considerable moral damage when a Paris weekly newspaper published a story saying she was friendly with the German chancellor.

The actress asked 1,000,000 francs ($26,500) damages.

Solomon: A Ruler Who Began Well

Highlights On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

"Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people, that I may discern between good and bad."—I Kings 3:9.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 2 is I Kings 3:5-15, the Golden Text being I Kings 3:9, "Give therefore Thy servant an understanding heart to judge Thy people, that I may discern between good and bad.")

With the death of Paul we return in today's lesson to the Old Testament, and study the lives of some of its famous characters. We begin with Solomon, son of David, whose wisdom is a by-word, even today. His reign began well, but he did not always do what was right.

Solomon really got the throne by a trick of his mother's. King David was an old man, nearing his death, and one of his sons, Adonijah, whose mother was Haggith, decided to make himself king. You remember Absalom, the dissolute son, whom David loved so much and who was killed when his horse ran under a tree and his long hair caught in the branches? Well, Adonijah was his younger brother. You see, in those days, kings had several wives, so naturally when the old king was dying, there was a great rivalry among them to place their own sons on the throne.

Solomon's mother was Bathsheba, and to her went Nathan, a prophet, and told her that Adonijah had set himself up as king and was feasting with his followers. "David, the king, knoweth it not," he told her, and then proceeded to direct her as to how she should act. So she went to the king and "made obeisance" before him, and when he asked her what she wanted she said she wanted him to make Solomon his heir to the throne. She also informed him that Adonijah had declared himself king without him, David, knowing about it.

Nathan Reports

Then Nathan came in and also bowed to the ground before King David and told him the same thing. So David, no doubt being angry at Adonijah, swore by all that was holy that Solomon should succeed him. So Nathan and the other priests put Solomon on King David's own donkey, and led him forth into the street and annointed him with oil from the altar, and blew on the trumpet announcing that he was king, and all the people said, "God save King Solomon!" Someone went to Adonijah and told him the tidings, and he and all those who had hailed him as king were very much afraid, and Adonijah was so frightened that he went and caught hold of the horns of the altar, hoping that his life would be spared if he were in a holy place.

When Solomon heard of it he said, "If he shew himself a worthy man, there shall not an hair of him fall to the earth. But if wickedness shall be found in him, he shall die." Adonijah then came down from the altar and bowed himself before Solomon, who said to him, "Go to thine house."

Now when King David felt he was going to die, he gave Solomon some very good advice. "Be thou strong, therefore," he told him, "and shew thyself a man.

"And keep the charge of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, to keep His statutes, and His commandments, and His judgments, and His testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, that thou mayest prosper in all that thou doest, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself."

"And Solomon loved the Lord, walking in the statutes of David his father". And he went to Gibeon, because it was "the great high place" and offered burned offerings on the altar. And while he was at Gibeon he dreamed that God came to him and said, "Ask what I shall give thee?"

Now Solomon was only about 17 or 18 years of age at this time, and he felt very young and inexperienced, so he answered: "I am but a little child, I know not how to go out or come in; Give therefore Thy servant an understanding heart to judge Thy people, that I may discern between good and bad, for who is able to judge this Thy so great a people?"

The Lord Pleased

This speech pleased the Lord because Solomon had not asked things for himself, so he told him he would be the wisest king that ever was and also would be rich and famous.

Do you know the story of the two women who came to Solomon with a dead and a living child, each claiming that the living was theirs? King Solomon told them they should cut the child in two and each take half, well knowing that the real mother never would allow her child to be harmed, but would rather give it to the other woman. And so it was, the real mother pleading that the child's life be spared even if she had to give him up to the other, and the imposter willing that the baby should die. The king, of course, gave the child alive to its own mother.

So wise was Solomon that his sayings were quoted all over the civilized world. The beautiful Queen of Sheba heard of him and went with a great retinue and many gifts to see him. She asked him many hard questions and he answered every one; so she went home amazed at his wisdom.

And Solomon built himself a wonderful house and he built the temple, both magnificent structures, and "he spake three thousand proverbs, and his songs were a thousand and five."

Solomon reigned for 40 years, and then died.

BRISTOL, Pa., July 1.—Mrs. Alma Bates, who lives near Edison, Bucks county, has had all the personal acquaintanceship with rats she hopes to have.

She was riding with her husband, Stanley, in the cab of their truck when she felt what she thought was her husband's hand on her shoulder. But when she turned her head she saw both of her husband's hands were on the steering wheel. The weight on her shoulder was that of a five-inch rat.

Mrs. Bates screamed and leaped from the truck before her husband could stop the machine. The rat disappeared.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

Copyright 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

EFFECTS OF RHEUMATIC FEVER SOMETIMES NOTED YEAR AFTERWARD

These writings about rheumatic fever would not be complete unless I cover the child who is unfortunate enough to have the disease and, because of ignorance and neglect, does damage to his heart.

Let us suppose he has had the disease. His joints have swollen and been sore, but as soon as the swelling goes down the boy gets up and goes back to school. He may go along for quite a spell, not noticing anything in particular wrong with him. I have even known cases where a year elapsed before the boy began to notice that he couldn't keep up with his playmates when it came to strenuous games. He finds that when he runs or moves about quickly he gets out of breath. His heart begins to pound with the slightest exercise.

Usually these unfortunate children keep trying to measure up with the rest, thus adding fresh damage to the heart condition every day. Finally when it gets so bad that the victim can hardly walk without getting all out of breath, the doctor is called. At least, this has been my experience.

Even though you put that child right to bed and keep him there, chances are that he will always be a chronic invalid. Often these children take to bed for a while and then after a few days get up and try to resume their activities. Finally another attack of acute infection strikes and he becomes very ill. He can't get his breath even when he is in bed, his legs and buttocks swell, his lips become blue. When the doctor arrives, he finds fluid in the chest because the heart is too weak to keep up proper circulation. On examination the doctor finds the heart enlarged, sometimes filling the greater part of the chest; blood pressure drops alarmingly because of the failing heart. Once the patient reaches this stage, there isn't much hope for him. Even if he does rally and pull through, he will be an invalid all his life. I have known children who had to remain in bed after such an attack. When they try to get up, they find that the heart just can't provide the drive to circulate the blood when they are in an upright position, so they have to stay in bed.

As a rule, there isn't much suffering with this disease except in the last stages, when fluid in the chest makes it difficult for the child to get his breath.

Occasionally we do find a child who suffers great pain in the late stages of the disease. This pain is in the form of an anginal attack. By that I mean it is like angina pectoris. These anginal attacks are just about the most severe pains a person can have.

This picture of a bad case of rheumatic fever is anything but bright. But remember that these dire results are all preventable Even though your child does contract rheumatic fever, you needn't fear that he will suffer this fate unless you disregard your doctor's advice.

If you follow the simple rules I told you about in the past few days, there is no reason why your child should contract the disease. Remember, it comes because there is a focus of infection in the child's system. This infection shows itself long before rheumatism develops. When it does show itself, see your doctor. He will do the rest.

Gets $1,400 For Moving Radium

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 1.—A slender Pittsburgh insurance agent who works with a minimum of lost motion and words was $1,400 richer today as a reward for moving one-sixth of an ounce of radium worth $125,000 from the old Memorial hospital for cancer to its new building four and a half miles away.

The Pittsburgher, A. L. Miller, 47, one of the few men in the country engaging in such hazardous work, required more than eight hours to remove the five tiny flasks containing the radium in a chloride solution from a hospital safe, packing them, transport them in three trips by truck, and then empty their contents into four new flasks. A specialist in recovering lost radium, he gave up the profession several years ago after three of his colleagues died from exposure to the substance and took to selling life insurance.

Crowd Takes Prisoner From Two Detectives

Prisoner Expected To Surrender However, As He Was Securely Handcuffed

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 1.—Two city detectives were mobbed on the North Side early today, their handcuffed prisoner escaping in the melee as the officers fought off a score of men who appeared "as if from nowhere."

Detectives George Best and Ernest Dunbar, suffering bruises from punches and kicks, were certain the fugitive would surrender voluntarily before many hours pass. The man, they said, was tightly locked in the latest type of handcuffs which would resist filing or sawing and were so securely fastened they would chafe his wrists painfully within a short time

Only an aceylene torch or the police keys would remove the cuffs, they said.

Meanwhile, they locked up a man docketed as Chester Nemetz, 26, charged with inciting to riot, aiding and abetting a felony, accessory to larceny and interfering with policemen.

The battle came after the officers stopped an automobile running with a flat tire. Its occupants fled, but Best caught the driver and placed him in the police car. A checkup revealed the car the detectives stopped had been stolen from Bellevue last Saturday and bore stolen license plates.

News And Views From Pennsylvania Capital

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 1.—Political observers attached more significance to the Hershey meeting of Gov. Arthur H. James,, National G. O. P. Chairman John Hamilton and Republican State Chairman James F. Torrance than the participants admitted. None of the three would comment officially on the conference, but it was understood Hamilton was seeking to sound out 1940 sentiment in Pennsylvania.

Hamilton, a frequent visitor in the Keystone state of recent months, indicated he was greatly pleased with the way things were "shaping up" for the G. O. P. 1940 presidential drive. Governor James, oft mentioned as a Republican presidential nominee, and Torrance assured Hamilton of their utmost cooperation.

There was a touch of humor connected with the Hershey conference and all three of the participants appreciated it. Seeking to evade Harrisburg newspapermen who might attach undue importance to the conference, Governor James and Torrance decided to meet Hamilton in Hershey rather than at the executive mansion. To the surprise of all three, they ran smack into a convention of approximately 90 newspapermen at Hershey.

Age before beauty became a byword with the newly-created commerce department as Secretary Richard P. Brown revealed that bathing beauty publicity as a means of attracting tourists to Pennsylvania was ruled out in favor of historic shrines and battlefields. The state will expend $400,000 the next two years to invite visitors, but Brown said it wouldn't go for gaudy photographs of sun-tanned playgirls. "We want to feature our historic shrines, battlefields, recreational facilities and parks, and forests," Brown said.

Signing of the much-debated Pierson "no work, no dole" bill by Governor James was termed by administration spokesmen as a means of "reducing the tax load Pennsylvania people are now carrying without handicap to a single deserving person." Under provisions of the law, able-bodied persons receiving relief must work for it. "The Pierson bill provides opportunity for relief beneficiaries to work for the support they are receiving, on penalty of being dropped from the relief rolls, and gives to communities opportunity to get something substantial in the way of public works for the money expended," it was said.

Governor James spent the busiest week since his inauguration as a flood of bills passed by the 1939 session were shoved on his desk for action. Carrying out his intention of allowing no bill to become law without his signature, the chief executive worked madly to clean up more than 600 measures. Almost 100 were vetoed.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Several Hundred From Ward Visit New Power Plant

Seventh Ward Night Is Observed At West Pittsburg Plant Friday

In order to inspect the new power plant at West Pittsburg of the Pennsylvania Power company, several hundred Seventh Ward people motored to the plant Friday night. This was observed as Seventh Ward night at the plant.

Persons who did not have a means of transportation to the plant were provided cars. Under the sponsorship of the transportation committee of the civic association, cars left North Cedar street in the vicinity of the Mahoning school between 7 and 7:30 o'clock Friday night.

Harry Elder, chairman of the transportation committee, arranged for the cars. Following a tour of the new plant, the ward residents met outside and then loaded into the cars for a motorcade back. Members of the Seventh Ward Progressive club also aided with the transportation.

Rev. And Mrs. Milton Shearer Are Subjected To Mahoningtown Tradition

In carrying out the traditional Mahoningtown welcome for newlyweds, from which not even ministers are exempt, Rev. Milton E. Shearer and his wife, the former Avanell Frush of Newark, O., were taken on a gay ride about town, Friday night.

Headed by the Sunday school superintendent, Walter Evans, a group from the Madison Avenue Christian church, called at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Shearer, and had them dress in the oldest of clothes.

The newly married couple, just home for a short time from their honeymoon, were given comfortable seats in the bed of an open truck. The "honeymoon chariot" was driven by H. L. McCartney on a ride through the streets.

The "chariot" carrying the newlyweds was accompanied by a string of motor cars with blaring horns and the ringing of cow bells. At the end of the ride the party went to West Pittsburg where they viewed the new power plant.

ABOUT THE CASTLETON

Hotel and Restaurant Employees Local, No. 262, finds it necessary to issue this statement to the people of New Castle concerning the strike of the employes of The Castleton Hotel.

For many days, representatives of the union have met with representatives of the hotel in the presence of Federal and State Department's of mediation represented by Mr. John Moffitt and Mr. Ramsey respectively, in the hope that a settlement could be reached and the employees return to their work. On Friday, June 30th, the climax was reached when Att'y Norman Martin, speaking for the hotel, stated that "there are many unemployed people in New Castle, who would be glad to work for only their room and board." Thus the policy of the hotel was exposed. Apparently they wanted to revert to a system of employment, that was wiped out by the Emancipation Proclamation.

This very thing is what the union is fighting against.

We are trying to elevate the standards of hotel employment so that they may enjoy life as other workers do.

The union demands are not extravagant. We are only asking for a decent living wage and humane conditions at work. We invite any civic-minded group of citizens of New Castle, who care to do so, to investigate this strike and determine whether or not the union is justified in their demands.

When Federal Mediator John Moffitt announced that he would report the attitude of the hotel to his government Mr. Martin retorted "You may tell this, with my compliments to Franklin Delano Roosevelt and to Miss Perkins."

Is there any wonder as to why we have been unable to negotiate a fair solution of our problem?

Neghiu-Rossi Wedding Today

Ceremony Performed This Morning By Rev. Fr. Galliano At B. V. M. Church

ELLWOOD CITY, July 1.—Ellwood City's first bride of July is Miss Valeria Neghiu, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Neghiu, 398 Pittsburgh Circle, who this morning at 10 o'clock in the B. V. M. church, in Fourth street, became Mrs. Alexander Rossi.

Her wedding to Mr. Rossi, son of Mrs. Mary Rossi, of Park avenue, was solemnized by Rev. Fr. Vincent Galliano in the presence of a large circle of relatives and friends. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion with garden flowers.

In a gown of white organza fashioned with a high neck line, leg-o-mutton sleeves and a long train, the bride was very lovely. Her veil of tulle and lace fell from a tiara of tiny white flowers and she carried an arm bouquet of roses and gardenias.

One of his co-defendants, William J. Gillespie, faced a similar fate and the other, Felipe Buencamino, Philippine legislator, faced a two-year sentence and a $10,000 fine.

The other two defendants, C. Wesley Turner, a Manhattan broker, and Capt. John S. Hyde, a retired British army officer and Hollywood producer, were acquitted. Buckner, Buencamino and Gillespie remained at liberty under bail pending sentencing scheduled for next Thursday afternoon before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard.

Norwegians Plan Big Air Fleet

(International News Service)

The commission arrived without fanfare yesterday and at once began discussions for a new fighting fleet to replace the present Norwegian air force for 200 German, Italian and British planes. The commission will rely largely on the advice of Bernt Balchen, the famous Atlantic and North Pole aviator, it was learned, although Balchen, an American citizen with Norwegian commercial aviation interests, denied all official connection with the commission.

Poland May Have Been Given Warning By Britain-France

Possibility Of Warning Seen In Statements In Polish Newspaper

By LESTER KIRKIEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WARSAW, July 1.—The possibility that Britain and France have warned Poland to refrain from any provocative acts against Germany was discussed in political quarters today as the result of a significant editorial in the semi-official newspaper Kurjer Poranny.

The editorial even hinted that Great Britain and France could not altogether be relied on to fulfill their alliance obligations with Poland in the event of a German coup.

Kurjer Poranny, which often speaks for the foreign office, stressed that Poland must in all circumstances continue to "depend on herself".

"We must have the courage to take independent decisions, based only on Poland's own strength," said the paper.

In contrast to this attitude, Poland and Great Britain have streamlined their alliance for faster coperative action in case of any kind of forceful strokes to wend Danzig again to the German Reich, a government spokesman said today.

With the Nazi Heihwehr (home guard)—the new name for the free corps—growing rapidly in Danzig with alleged German support, official circles said the Polish attitude towards the Danzig situation is stiffening.

"Every action in Danzig will be followed by precise counter-measures," the spokesman said.

"It is now understood both in Britain and Poland that any act of violence, whether it comes from within or without the free city would constitute an act of war."

If Poland decides to fight, Britain automatically must come to her assistance, under terms of the Anglo-Polish alliance.

FIRE BLIGHT OF APPLE CONTROLLED BY SPRAYING

Fire blight of apples can be controlled by spraying with a bordeaux mixture at the full bloom stage.

In a demonstration being conducted by the Agricultural Extension Service of the Pennsylvania State College in a commercial orchard, counts were made recently on sprayed and unsprayed Baldwin and Wagner apple trees. Only 5 per cent of the clusters of the sprayed Baldwins were blighted, compared with 50 per cent infection in the unsprayed trees.

The results were even more favorable in the case of the Wagners. Only 8 per cent of the clusters in the strayed trees were blighted while 70 per cent were blighted in the unsprayed block. No russeting or decreased set of fruit were apparent as a result of spraying.

Fire blight, which gives the leaves an appearance of having been burned, is extremely prevalent in many communities this year. The disease may kill the blossom cluster or the small fruit. It may also kill the spur that would ordinarily bear fruit the following year. Canker may develop and kill the entire branch.

Although spraying is not recommended for all varieties it has been found extremely helpful in reducing the disease in which susceptible varieties as Baldwin, Wagner, Yellow Transparent, Wealthy, King, Summer Rambo, and others.

Summer pruning frequently spreads rather than checks the disease as the germs may be carried on the tools. However, removal of dead wood in winter is possible and practical, particularly for the removal of cankers. It is important to follow pruning with the full bloom spray in the spring.

Pear trees generally are attacked more severely than apple. Often a few old pear trees near an apple orchard may serve as a source of infection and their removal may reduce the fire blight problem.

FOLLOW SINGLE METHOD FOR GROWING TOMATOES

Although several methods of handling and pruning tomatoes are practiced regularly, experienced growers select one and use it to the exclusion of others throughout the season.

Each method has its merits under certain conditions, but it is a mistake to start with one and change to another. Such practices usually give disappointing results.

Many market growers cultivate their tomatoes until the fruit begins to form, and then mulch with six inches of straw or other loose material. The mulch eliminates the need of future cultivation, prevents weed growth, conserves moisture, and provides a clean place for ripening fruit.

Where space is limited, growers set the plants more closely and stake and prune them, using a stake extending five feet above the ground for each plant. Although leaves are never removed, the small suckers or branches which grow from the main stem at the axils of leaves are destroyed, leaving one main stem. The plants are pruned every week or ten days and tied to the stakes. This method provides for the development of about six clusters of tomatoes.

Other growers allow two stems to grow. The side branch below the first cluster of blossoms is permitted to develop into the second stem. Both stems are pruned regularly. Usually six clusters are provided on the main stem and five on the other.

The fruit may also be kept off the ground by constructing a frame about a foot from the ground around the plants. No pruning is necessary.

SIMPLE SHELTERS GIVE SWINE SUMMER COMFORT

Because swine have no sweat glands and frequently suffer considerable discomfort during hot weather, the construction of shelters to provide artificial shade for hogs in shadeless pastures is suggested.

A shelter can be built easily and cheaply by setting poles 12 to 16 feet apart in the form of a square, extending four feet above the ground. By placing other poles over the top, a frame roof is provided. The next step is to place straw, corn fodder, or other loose material on top. A few additional poles or woven wire, placed over the material will keep it from blowing away.

The loose material provides cooler shade than would boards or galvanized iron. By having the roof about four feet from the ground and the shed open on all sides, an excellent circulation of air is provided for keeping the hogs cool and comfortable, in hot weather.

By sprinkling crankcase oil over the ground under the shelter, a firm, almost dustless floor is provided. The oil also helps control parasites. Spraying, sprinkling or rubbing crankcase oil over the animals twice, with an interval of two weeks, helps control lice. Similar results are obtained by providing a rubbing post kept well supplied with oil.

During hot weather it is important that swine have a plentiful supply of fresh, clean water at all times.

HINTS TO SHOPPERS OF MEN'S UNDERGARMENTS

Women who shop for their husbands undergarments may ask, "How do we know if we're getting the right size, particularly in shorts?

A 'full cut' lable is usually good, but it often bears checking, says Miss Julia Markle, home economics extension representative of Lawrence county. Don't be afraid to use a tape measure.

So that you may check your prospective purchase, Miss Markle lists the minimum measurements in inches for men's shorts.

Size	Total length	Leg width	Width across seat
28	16	11½	21
30	16½	12	22
32	16½	12½	23
34	17	13	24
36	17	13½	25
38	17½	14	26
40	17½	14½	27
42	18	15	28
44	18	15½	29
46	18½	16	30
48	18½	16½	31
50	19	17	32

There are two general types of design for men's shorts: the seamless or panel back and the center-seam back. The latter is a trifle smaller around the thighs and shorter in leg length. The panel back is usually more comfortable because the center seam, which is likely to shrink and pull in, is eliminated. Waist lines in either type are usually adjustable. When elastic is used it is best to have not less than six inches of it visable.

All seams should be flat, smooth and double-stiched with a small lock stitch.

Cotton is the most popular fiber used for men's shorts. In good quality it is light weight, easily laundered, fairly cool, absorbent, and durable. Rayon is cool, but when wet it loses some of its strength and tends to stretch and stay stretched. This factor makes rayon a poor substitute for cotton as far as laundering and retaining its shape are concerned.

Camp Rentz Ready As 1939 Season Opens Wednesday

Camp Fred L. Rentz of the New Castle Y M. C. A., where scores of New Castle boys expect to vacation this summer, was in readiness today for the arrival of its first group of 67 campers on Wednesday, July 5, and for the formal opening ceremonies scheduled for that day.

Henry T. MacNicholas, assistant general secretary who becomes camp director for the twelfth consecutive season, gave the 26-acre grounds along the banks of Slippery Rock creek his final eagle-eye inspection today.

MacNicholas toured the camp tract with the regular 'Y' secretarial staff.

Already 117 Signed Up

He said 117 different boys have already signed up for the 1939 season, opening Wednesday and continuing until August 9. The first week will see 67 in camp, the second a group of 69, the third, 58, and the fourth and fifth equally large delegations.

Hardly a camp building has missed some sort of minor improvement, and the grounds have been placed in excellent condition with the new power mower which the "Y" purchased this year. For the past few days the camp crew has been mowing down the high grass that rises during the winter and spring.

The eight cabins have been checked, screened, the outdoor chapel re-arranged, the swimming pool has been gone over and a new diving tower, which can be dismantled in winter or high water periods, has been installed. On Monday the new official high-board for diving will be installed.

After the youngsters have gone through the customary camp-opening formalities Wednesday, they'll submit themselves for swimming tests. It is always one of the "firsts" on the camp program.

Visitors To Spot Changes

About camp a visitor will notice a new high backstop at the ball field, newly printed name plates on all eight cabins and other buildings, a newly renovated Katy Did dining lodge and a newly renovated administration building, recreation hall and handicraft building.

MacNicholas said today that all "Y" campers are expected to report direct to Camp Rentz Wednesday before 9:30 a. m.

The attractive camp acreage was donated to the local association by Fred L. Rentz in 1930, and has since shared numerous gifts from the entire Rentz family and other prominent citizens

Camp Roster Given

With General Secretary Robert L. Meermans as camp manager and MacNicholas as director this year, aides will include Physical Director William Winter, in general charge of activities; Harold Gibson, handicraft counselor; Gethin Thomas, religious counselor; Richard E. Johns, Jr., athletics and assistant to Winter; Tom Cramer, music and recreation building director; Jack Dunlap, boats and campfire; David Gotrall, camp store and Katy Did lodge; Dave Cramer, music and athletics.

Judge W. Walter Braham handed down an opinion on Friday which settles the question as to whether or not school districts can collect the per capita tax from the employer of a taxpayer.

The opinion came down in the case of J. A. Graham, C. H. McLenahan and Harry Googe against Edward F. Munn, the Mahoning Township School District and the Sharon Steel company. The plaintiffs had asked for an injunction to restrain the defendants from collecting their per capita tax from the Sharon Steel company basing it on the grounds that they worked in the Lowellville, O., plant.

Judge Braham said in his opinion that both the taxpayer and the employer were domiciled in Pennsylvania and that there was no question as to the right of the township to collect the taxes from the Sharon Steel company. The costs of the action are assessed against the school board. The injunction is dismissed.

Judge Braham also handed down an opinion in the case of D'Metro Warsen, also known as Metro Leshinski against Alfredo Graziana, Mary Graziani and Jack Steinbrink agent. This was a case where the defendants were alleged to have levied for rent when no rent was due. The plaintiff sued and got a judgment. The defendant asked for judgment. N. O. V. (notwithstanding the verdict.) The court held that it was clear there was no rent due when the levy was made and the petition was dismissed.

Players Chosen For All-Star Game July 11

Stars Of Both American And National Leagues Will Play At Yankee Stadium

HARTNETT-MACK NAMED MANAGERS

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 1.—Fred Haney of the Browns and Doc Prothro of the Phillies probably will heave a few sighs of regret when they cast their eyes over the rosters for the all-star game in Yankee stadium July 11.

Both Fred and Doc probably would give their eye teeth to have their choice of players such as Gabby Hartnett will lead into battle for the National league and Connie Mack will have charge of for the American.

Lots of Material

These "dream" squads were selected by the managers of the two leagues and a glance at the rosters will convince anyone that they have done a fine job. Here is how they stack up:

American League

Pitchers—Bridges, Feller, Grove, Ruffing, Gomez, Lyons, Newsom, Murphy.

Catchers—Dickey, Hayes, Hemsley.

Infielders—Foxx, Greenberg, McQuinn, Rolfe, Cronin, Crosetti, Gordon, Appling, Gehringer.

Outfielders—DiMaggio, Heag, Cramer, Johnson, Case, Selkirk.

National League

Pitchers—Derringer, Davis, Fette, Vander Meer, Warneke, Walters, Wyatt, Lee.

Catchers—Lombardi, Phelps, Danning.

Infielders—Hack, Vaughn, McCormick, Frey, Mize, Herman, Camilli, Jurges, Lavagetto.

Outfielders — Arnovich Medwick, Goodman, Ott, Terry Moore.

Here is a plethora of material for any manager. Hartnett and Mack will have a hard time deciding just what players to start in what positions. However, on second thought, it won't make much difference for one game, for instance, whether Mack starts Crosetti, Appling or Cronin at short. They are all great stars and any one of them will fill the bill. And it won't make much difference whether Hartnett calls on Lombardi, Danning or Phelps to catch. They're all great.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

There are no wildcats in Warren county, despite reports, says Refuge Keeper John Hopkins in the Pennsylvania Game News. He made an investigation following a report of wildcats bothering fishermen. Hopkins reported the hideous sounds heard were caused by two amorous porcupines. A crow was seen by Frank F White of McKees Rocks to soar into the air near Traverse creek, Beaver county, with a rabbit in its claws. The crow dropped the rabbit which soon died. What damage a cat can do was discovered on a state refuge when a stray cat, weighing 14 pounds, was killed. Its stomach was examined and in it was found a freshly eaten red squirrel and a partially digested rabbit. The intestinal track showed rabbit fur, grouse feathers and several feathers of some small bird. The place where the feline was killed was two miles to the closest farm house and it had not come from there. The keeper of the refuge believes the cat was living in the wild.

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, is reported getting along nicely following the removal of his appendix in a New York hospital. Jack was on the table 35 minutes and while the surgeons removed his appendix discussed the Louis-Galento fight. Dempsey was supposed to have appeared in a Toledo July 4 celebration of his victory over Jess Willard and to have refereed in East Liverpool and Clarksburg July 5 and 6. Something went wrong with the Clarksburg affair and Thursday, Byron Foutts of East Liverpool telephoned the writer asking if the Jefferson A. C. desired to avail itself of Jack's refereeing here July 6, which was made impossible when Jack was stricken down.

Bass Season Is Opened Today

Countless Hundreds Of Fishermen Will Seek "Big Ones" Today At Favorite Spots

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 1. — Undaunted by gloomy forecasts from the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, the boys who angle for those "big black bass" invaded bass waters throughout the commonwealth today.

Approximately 400,000 fishermen welcomed the opening of the bass season despite the fact that the commission shattered hopes of the majority for successful catches by predicting that "prospects are not so good."

From all sections of the state, the commission received discouraging reports from its field men. Two reasons were advanced for the pessimistic forecast:

1.—Intermittent showers have discolored streams with muddy run-off waters.

2.—There has been a tremendous drain this year on the food supply of bass.

When the "boys" started to pick the best crop of the season, Walters' name does not come up. In his first 12 encounters, Bucky pitched at least nine innings in each. Reds Tamed By Veteran Root

Veteran Cubs Pitcher Sets Down League Leaders, Has Baffling Curve

YANKEES DEFEAT WASHINGTON 10 TO 2

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 1—There were only three major league games yesterday but one of them served to stress the amazing prowess of Charley Root, dean of National League pitchers.

The Chicago Cub veteran actually seems to improve with age. He says he is 40 so you can be sure he is at least that old, for ball players never add anything to their years.

He hasn't got the speed he once had but there is nothing the matter with his curve; his control is almost perfect and his head and heart are superb.

Cubs Top Reds

He used all those assets to turn back the league-leading Reds 5 to 1, and gave up only eight hits. The Cubs made only 4 off Johnny Vander Meer, who was banished for giving the umpire too strenuous an argument, and Whitey Moore, but between them they issued nine bases on balls and the Cubs joyfully took advantage of same.

The Chicago victory tightened National league race a bit more and judging by the way the Reds have been going lately it soon may be much tighter than it is.

There were two games in the American. The Tigers moved up into third place by trimming the White Sox 3-1, Buck Newsom gave only six hits and two errors cost the White Sox a pair of runs.

The Yanks pounded out an easy 10-2 decision over the Senators in a game halted first by rain and then called at the end of the seventh on account of darkness. Hildebrand held the Senators to four hits while his mates slugged Carrasquel and Krakauskas for 13.

Johnson Bronze Wins Loop Game

The Johnson Bronze softball team won a City Softball League game last night from the Sons of Italy team 3 to 2 at the Rotary Field, this being the only City League game that was played on account of wet weather.

Sammy Pezzone did a swell job of pitching and let the Sons of Italy sluggers down with one hit after relieving Stubs Dweyer in the first inning. He fanned ten men. Gabby DeCaprio, Perch and Henderson did the best hitting for the winners.

Scores by innings: R H E
Sons of Italy ....200 000 000—2 3 3
Johnson Bronze..010 011 00x—3 7 0

Batteries: Sons of Italy: Capp and Fava.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL.

As we have said before, and we are all at one time or another guilty . . . passing up stop signs at street intersections. This problem is very important . . . especially at intersections which are considered blind. One of the worst streets of this type is Albert street . . . almost every intersection is a blind intersection to a certain extent. City motorists . . . watch the stop signs.

The sun will shine today, tomorrow, Monday and maybe Tuesday . . . the day when we all want sunshine, it will probably rain. The reason we are looking so glum is because every time we say it will be nice it turns out the other way. Let's hope, when we say it will be bad, it will turn out good.

* * *

Here we have New Castle . . . the old home town. They come from a quiet little family, but as they grow up their desires in life are different, and therefore different occupations call them away. One goes south, one goes west and one stays home and marries a home town boy. As months grow into years, and years pass rapidly, the desire to return to the old home town seems to disappear . . . but that desire is sometimes put on . . . like and air. "It sure is good to get back home", they say . . . back where the old friends say "Hello", and the relations gossip and say . . . "My, isn't she young looking", or "what a fine looking wife he has". But that makes little difference . . . we are glad to see them all back . . . and wish many more could come and make us a visit.

A good many people will be going away, probably starting today, for the Fourth holiday. But on the other hand, a great many will be staying at home . . . and those are the ones we are talking to today. Tomorrow is Sunday . . . the day when the majority of people just sit around and sleep in. Why not plan on getting up by nine o'clock and attending Sunday school, or if not that early, church. The church needs you . . . you are the life blood of its existence . . . and that is one institution of these United States that we want to see live, and live strong . . . The Church.

Leaders Chalk Up Fractional Gains As Week-End Market Draws To Close

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service
Financial Writer

NEW YORK, July 1.—The stock market closed out the week on a steadier note today, as most leaders chalked up fractional gains in quiet trading.

Attendance in the street was extremely light, many taking an extended holiday through the 4th. Sales for the two hours of trading were close to 200,000 shares.

Foreign news, particularly on the Danzig situation, continued the principal topic in financial circles. Munitions and men were reported still flowing into the disputed area from East Prussia and Hitler was understood to be planning a visit to the free city on July 20.

Business reports were ignored. Steel operations will show a sharp contraction next week due to the usual holiday shut-downs. Department store sales showed further gains.

A few stocks, as Johns-Manville, International Harvester, Coca-Cola and Union Carbide, chalked up gains of a point or more. Air Reduction and Du-Pont were up 2 points.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber and other pivotals showed fractional improvement.

There were some backward issues. Douglas Aircraft dropped more than a point at the start, but reduced its loss before the close. National Steel turned in a similar performance.

Dr. Bennett Is Back From Scout National Meeting

Extended Invitation To Colonel Theodore Roosevelt To Speak Here

Returning to New Castle, Friday night, Dr. G. S. Bennett, president of the Lawrence County Council, Boy Scouts of America, brought back a splendid report of the National Boy Scout Council meeting, held in New York City, this week.

On behalf of the New Castle Council, Dr. Bennett presented an invitation to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, to personally attend and be the speaker for the annual council banquet in February 1940. Although Colonel Roosevelt did not give his answer immediately, he stated that he hoped that he might be able to come here.

National Council headquarters for the convention was the Waldorf-Astoria and activities centered about this point. At a luncheon for the council Wednesday, Al Smith, spoke.

John R. Mott was the speaker for the banquet Wednesday evening. Scouts of New York and parts of New Jersey put on special programs during the event. At a breakfast for Region Three, of which New Castle is a part, Marshall Field of Chicago was the speaker.

Climax to the affair came Thursday, with Boy Scout Day at the World's Fair. Starting with a luncheon on the fair grounds, at which time, Dr. Bennett heard Mayor LaGuardia and Grove Whalen address the council.

In the Court of Peace at the fair, an impressive ceremony was performed at which time 75,000 Boy Scouts took part. This was the largest assemblage of Boy Scouts ever to gather at one place in the entire world. Justice Roberts of the U. S. Supreme Court and J. Edgar Hoover addressed the scouts. Theme of the convention was, "The Boys of Today and the Men of Tomorrow".

Girl Scout Day Camp Closes On Friday Afternoon

Community Project Is Success Despite Fact That Rain Interferes

CAMP CLOSED WITH OPEN HOUSE PROGRAM

Winding up what was perhaps the most successful Day Camp for local Girl Scouts in many years, an Open House Day was held Friday at Cascade Park. Despite the rain, the program was performed as scheduled.

Parents and friends of the Scouts made a tour of the camp, inspecting the various units and the work done by each during their 10-day camping program. This annual Day Camp is a Community project, supported by the local Community Chest.

An inspiring sight for the parents and visitors was the 150 girls in the morning lineup at 9 o'clock. This program included a flag salute, song, pledge to flag, color ceremony. At the close of this the girls divided into units for various activities.

At 10 o'clock a water carnival was held in charge of Mrs. Janice Rumbaugh. At the carnival following persons received recognition:

Beginners who learned to dive: Dorothy Jackamo, Betty Forrest, Janice Arble, and Patty Haley. Regular Swimmers in Umbrella Relay, was won by Rose Jennings. Milk bottle race was won by Peggy Thayer. Diving formation was won by: Diana Elder, Dolly Flynn, Joan Withers, Lucille Penwell, Carol Boyd, Jenny Wise, Margaret Grant, Eleanor Petitt and Rose Jennings. Deep water diving for beginners: Katherine Raidy, Jean Paton, Sally Hammil, Marjorie Montgomery, Shirley Rosenberg, Delores Stitzinger, Shirley Olsen and Ruth Sampson.

Divers off board: Lucille Penwell, Jean Turner, Katherine Raidy, Margaret Grant, Dolly Fylnn, Rose Jennings, Jennie Wise, Gloris Stitzinger and Midgie Jones.

Success of the camp was due largely to the efficient work of Miss Helen MacLean, Scout Director, and Miss Regina Popp, Day Camp committee chairman, who did a big piece of work. They were aided by an efficient staff of leaders.

McCarthy Will Manage American League All-Stars

Replaces Connie Mack Who Has Been Ill In Boston, Gehrig Is Named Captain

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 1.—Connie Mack today withdrew as manager of the American League All-Star team, which will meet the National League All-Stars at New York on July 11, according to an announcement by President William B. Harridge of the American circuit. Mack is ill in Boston.

Joe McCarthy, pilot of the world's champion New York Yankees, later agreed to handle the American Leaguers in the big game.

Another change in the American League squad saw Lou Gehrig, New York Yankees star who was forced to retire from active play this year, appointed a non-playing captain.

Gehrig was not included in the original squad, but inasmuch as he has seen service in every all-star game and because of his distinguished playing record, he was giving the coaching post.

President Harridge said that Manager Mack, who became ill in Boston earlier in the week, did not feel it wise to take on the responsibilities of the all-star team, in addition to his own club, and asked to be relieved of the assignment.

Treasury Closes Books "In The Red"

Deficit Marks Close Of Fiscal Year For Ninth Straight Time

By LEON W. SHLOSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 1. — The United States treasury closed books on its ninth straight year "in the red" today, and launched into a new fiscal year with little prospect of a 1940 deficit smaller than the three-and-a-half billion dollar discrepancy between costs and income during the 12-month period ended last midnight.

The 1938-39 fiscal year deficit was the second largest during the nine year span that started in 1931 with a modest $901,959,000 failure to meet expenses. Only in 1936, when the deficit totaled $4,952,928,000 was the 1938-39 figure topped.

Only inability to spend as fast as the administration planned kept the deficit from being half a billion dollars more—as estimated—but at that total expenditures, aggregating approximately $9,200,000,000 surpassed any prior year's spending under the New Deal. The "bonus year"—1936, during which the soldier's bonus was distributed—had led in the total expense category, with $8,666,000,000, until the 1938-39 period.

The public debt soared along with the three-and-one-half billion dollar deficit to a new record high of $40,400,000,000.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—"WHY SPEAK OF IT NOW?"

New Small Loan Scheme Criticized By Babson

By ROGER W. BABSON
(Copyright, 1939, Publishers Financial Bureau)

GLOUCESTER, Mass., June 30.—Most economists and business men agree that the real cause of depression is debt. In 1929, personal bank loans, business loans, brokers' loans and mortgages on homes and other real estate were at all-time highs. Everyone owed everyone else. When the burden of this debt finally became too heavy, the whole structure collapsed. A good deal of this private debt was liquidated from 1929 to 1932. Since then debts have been increasing rapidly again. The president's latest scheme of issuing $3,000,000,000 of fancy government bonds is the limit.

In general, since 1933, people have been encouraged to get into debt rather than to get out of debt. For instance, for every dollar that loans on securities have been cut down by New Deal insistence on higher margins, loans on houses have been increased by reducing the down payment. In 1929, a man could buy conservative stocks by putting up 20 per cent of the money, but he could not buy a home unless he put up 30 to 40 per cent. Today, a man can buy a home if he can make a down payment of 10 to 20 per cent, but he cannot buy stocks or bonds unless he can lay 40 per cent on the counter.

Instalment Sales Booming

Instalment debt has also increased sensationally. The administration sponsored instalment selling under the provisions of the first Housing Act. People were allowed to paint their houses, rebuild their roofs, and do other repair work on an easy-payment basis. The government also encouraged the sale of electrical appliances on a time basis. This was splendid advertising for time sales schemes. In the boomlet of 1936-37, instalment selling went on a rampage from which it has not yet returned.

Instalment selling has spread into many other fields. Look at your current mail-order catalogue and see how some concerns are merchandizing "soft" goods on an easy-payment basis. You can buy anything today—even shirts, socks and your total order amounts to $10. Instalment selling has made it more difficult than ever to forecast business conditions. Ten years ago if you knew the value of inventories unsold and the amount of bank loans outstanding, you had a good idea as to the trend of future business. Today, the amount of money owed on instalment contracts is also a tremendous factor.

Debt Reduction Discouraged

Not only has little been done to help reduce debt, but the recent tax laws have discouraged business men in doing so. For instance, if a small and financially weak concern could buy up its notes at a substantial discount the discount would have to be reported at the end of the year as profit and be taxed at 12 to 16 per cent. Meanwhile, Big Business concerns, whose bonds and notes have been selling at par or better, have been calling their bonds and refinancing their debt. They have thus been able to take advantage of the lowest interest rates in history and have cut their fixed charges drastically. The small business man has been unable to do this.

The latest idea in Washington is to encourage debt reduction. It will permit financially weak concerns to buy in their interest-bearing obligations at less than par without incurring a tax liability. As far as helping out the smaller business man from a credit standpoint, this is the first forward step that congress has taken in a long time. The undistributed profits tax was also a handicap to business concerns, big and small, who wanted to cut their debts. This tax is being completely abolished in the new "business relief" tax measure now going through congress.

The bill, which wipes out the tax liability incurred by a company buying its own obligations below par, is a constructive step. It can become a definite aid to executives, workers and investors of weak business concerns. This new program should help to strengthen many second-grade bond and note issues. In fact, with high-grade corporation bonds selling at all-time highs, many business and professional men, who can afford to take a little extra risk, may be wiser in buying some of the better second-grade issues.

Debt No Longer Disgrace

As I write this column at my birth-place by the sea, I am forcibly reminded of the great change that has taken place since the World war in peoples' attitude toward debt. Only 25 years ago debt, like smallpox, was something to avoid. Banks, schools and parents encouraged savings. The goal of all was a bank account—even though it started at only one dollar. Mortgages were a disgrace.

Today, I find an entire change of sentiment here in the old city. Banks, schools and parents no longer encourage deposits. Debt is no longer shunned. Despite this change in attitude, I cannot believe that debt is any less dangerous today than it ever was. Yet, even in the face of this situation, I am optimistic on business for the near future. In fact, June industrial activity was considerably better than May. Moreover, July should be as good a business month as June. However, the changed attitude as to thrift and debt, if continued, makes me very fearful that we are heading into a terrible smash some day!

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1939 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The courts have reduced the taxes on Gardiner's Island, in Gardiner's Bay, off Saybrook, Connecticut—thirty thousand acres of concentrated New England romance—from three hundred thousand dollars to two hundred and fifty thousand. A mere candlelight of news, but it illuminates three hundred years of New England history and legend. For Gardiner's Island has been held by the Gardiner family ever since 1639, when the Earl of Sterling granted it to the first Lion Gardiner.

The present Lion Gardiner might well claim the distinction of being chief of the first family of America, still in possession of ancestral lands handed down from generation to generation. Old Lion the First, an English military engineer, came to Boston in 1635. A David Gardiner built a fine colonial mansion on the island in 1774, still in excellent repair.

In the time of David Gardiner's son John, the famous pirate Captain Kidd prowled Gardiner Bay and made the island his rendezvous. He gave sweetmeats to Lady Gardiner for her children, and fine presents of cloth-of-gold which she dared not refuse. Captain Kidd buried much treasure on the island for which the unwise are still digging—gold and silver coin, precious stones, silver candlesticks, gold bars and gold dust. He confided his secret to Lord John Gardiner. He told Lord John to keep the treasure if he never returned, but if he ever called and found it missing, Lord John would pay for it with his head.

When the Earl of Bellomont was governor of New York, he ordered Gardiner to surrender the treasure for the use of the king, and Lord Gardiner dug it up and turned it over to a king's commission of four—Samuel Sewell, Nathaniel Byfield, Jeremiah Dummer and Andrew Belcher. And that is the real story of the famous buried treasure of Captain Kidd.

Buried treasure is in the news, and breathless hunts for it in regions as far apart as New York's Long Island, Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island—which is really the Isle of Pines, off Cuba—and in the mountains of Bolivia. These stories always spark a thrill in the cosmos of us boys with any romantische left in us. For at heart, a good many of us are Tom Sawyers and Huckleberry Finns, creeping fearfully in our dreams into Injun Joe's cave and digging up his stolen gold; or Jim Hawkins, prowling Treasure Island with Ben Gunn and outwitting Long John Silver to win the gold and silver of the bloody pirate Flint: "Fifteen men on a dead man's chest, drink and the devil had done for the rest."

Over in Roslyn Hills, Long Island, on one of the old estates going back to 1709, an estate of the Valentine, Robbins, Onderdonk and Skillman families, they are digging these days for the treasure buried just before the Revolutionary War by an Onderdonk—silverware, jewelry and gold and silver coin. Down in the Caribbean, Dr. Cyrus French Wicker, using a remodeled rum-chaser, Pieces of Eight, as his ship, and utilizing scientific instruments with electrical eyes and ears, spotted fourteen tons of bar silver under eighteen feet of water and mud, following the lure of ancient pirate maps.

But the most intriguing of all these tales of buried treasure comes from Bolivia, where the government sends out very unromantic scientists to seek a sixty-million dollar treasure, the most alluring gold cache in the world, probably, lost 300 years ago and guarded now, as the Indians say, by devils.

It was in 1635 that the Jesuit monks of the Monastery of Plazuela were hard-pressed by an Indian uprising—the Indians who for a century had been placering and mining gold for them and the king of Spain in one of the richest regions of the golden New World. For years, this horde of gold had been piling up, held in trust by the monks for the Spanish crown. The uprising came. The monks barely escaped with their lives, and just in time to bury the great treasure deep within the monastery walls, under many feet of massive masonry.

Long after the death of the last one of these monks, documents were found which definitely located the great gold cache in the ruins of the old monastery, now strangled by the jungle. In 1920, an official expedition opened a tunnel in the foundations where the parchments said it should be. Hot on the scent they made their way, like moles, through winding, cavernous depths until they came up against a stark, blank, forbidding wall of huge stones.

In the flare of their torches, they made out a carved inscription, at first indecipherable. They cleared away the encrusted dirt and read these words:

"A dolorous death in this world awaits the one who dares to enter this place, and in the world where he goes, eternal damnation." With yells of terror, the Indian workmen dropped their picks, and fled, leaving the white leaders all alone. They had reason to believe that sixty million dollars in gold lay just on the other side of that wall and its threat, but with the workmen gone, they were helpless. The search was abandoned for years as the story spread of a ghostly hand repelling the invaders, and of a deep and solemn voice pronouncing a warning and a curse.

—BUY IN NEW CASTLE—

Are you aware that the Hudson river is 306 miles long? Its source is Henderson lake, Essex county New York, and it flows into upper New York bay.

July 1.

Dear Brother Lion:

Lion "Doc" Henderson will give his farewell address as president of the club for the past twelve months. A good year it has been, too. President-elect Conway will receive the gavel and carry on from here.

All officers and directors will be installed in a regular ceremony. A short business meeting will conclude the program.

The meeting, of course, will be Wednesday, July 5.

Very truly yours,

THOMAS I. ELLIOTT,
Secretary.
